

Important to me in providing training

*To be training on something that is important to me...something that will give value to others.

*To feel that I am part of something that will change the world...for my passion to be beneficial to others.

*That my love of learning is shared with others.

*I like to have ample time to prepare, both myself and my materials. This includes keeping up on current materials and methods.

*I like to know my audience and what they are expecting to get out of the training.

*I like having time with a co-trainer before the event to make sure we are both clear on our roles and expectations.

*I love having examples and stories to share that both explain how to use tools, and the benefits of using PCT tools.

How to support me best

*Know that I always want to help, so sometimes I over commit. I will complete the job, but might think twice about it the next time.

*Knowing that I have someone to call on with questions if needed.

*Give me feedback, I can't improve without it...

*Share your knowledge and history...let me feel your passion and energy.

*Listen to me...I don't always want problem solving, I just want communication.

*I can be technologically challenged, so having an "expert" is important.

*Learning is very important to me, so the most important support I can receive from others is sharing...knowledge, experience, passion!

*I like to know details...who, what, when, where, why and how. If I ask questions it is because I want to always have all the information I need to do a great job. Please answer my questions...
